

Update Bulletin

Add An ONEAC!

November 7, 2002

StoreNext Retail Technologies has put together an outstanding arrangement with Oneac to offer StoreNext Dealers some pretty amazing pricing on Oneac filters, power conditioners and UPS units.

So when you buy a TeamPoS 2000 or an ISS45 from StoreNext, Add An Oneac!

But don't stop there – many of you Dealers are also in the

- Hospitality or
- General Merchandise/Specialty

segments too. With prices like these, you'll want to put our ONEground power conditioners under those kitchen printers to eliminate spikes and bad data from ground loops.

Why buy these items from StoreNext?

- These are from Oneac. Absolutely the Rolls Royce of the power business.
- Great prices. We've priced all these units at Dealer Net, and some are dramatically less expensive than competing units from other companies or industry groups. For example
 - Oneac FilterOne: $59 Dealer Net.
 - 75VA top of the line Oneac Power Conditioner with ONEground (great for hospitality): $85 Dealer Net (compare at $145 Dealer cost).
 - 300VA UPS – enough to run a lane of TeamPoS 2000 and all its peripherals long enough to clear the line of waiting shoppers: $79 Dealer Net.
 - 650VA UPS – enough to run a lane of TeamPoS 2000 and all its peripherals for over 45 minutes: $165 Dealer Net.
- One Stop Shopping with StoreNext – take a TeamPoS, Add and Oneac! Sell a Sharpe, Add an Oneac! Market a Micros, Add an Oneac! Put in a Panasonic, Add an Oneac!
- All Oneacs count toward Centurion Club points. (As long as you're crawling around under the checkstand messing around with ground loops and power spikes, you may as well have a tropical vacation to look forward to.)

The StoreNext Oneac products are detailed out in Marketing Bulletin 1186, always available on the StoreNext Dealer Support Web site at www.StoreNext.com. We've also posted a series of Oneac brochures and technical information on the site's Brochure page, so you'll want these as backup for your sales campaign.

To Your Success,

Tony
